AGREEMENT PROTOCOL BETWEEN

Region of Tuscany
University of Pisa Faculty of Veterinary Medicine
Experimental Zooprophyllactic Institute of the Regions of Lazio and Tuscany

The Region of Tuscany in the person of the Regional Council Officer for the Right to Health Enrico Rossi, the University of Pisa in the person of the Dean of the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine Vittorio Tellarini, the Experimental Zooprophyllactic Institute of the Regions of Lazio and Tuscany in the person of the Director General Nazareno Renzo Brizioli in implementation of the Regional Health Care Plan 2002-2004

WHEREAS

- The evolution of the world of production and of society in general calls for increasing efforts in the fields of knowledge and training, underpinned by awareness of the need to address present-day problems from the multiple perspectives of theory and professional practice;
- The fields of animal health care and food production are undergoing the same trends towards change, leading to the need for substantial investment in terms of competencies and cooperation;
- In the case of Tuscany, several equally important aspects should be underlined:
 - the existence of small-scale production units that retain many features of the artisanal tradition; such units are oriented towards creation of quality products whose traditional local character forms part of the product image and the regional image;
 - the presence of a rich distribution system involving both traditional retail outlets and organised chain store distribution;
 - with regard to consumption, the widespread presence, often in an organised form, of a tradition of high quality cuisine, extremely demanding in terms of product characteristics and health and hygiene considerations;
 - in the social and ethical sphere, among the community in general, a high regard for animal welfare values, with increasing interest in animals and the environment, and a willingness to encourage and enhance relations of socialisation with pets and other animals, ranging from companion animals to those involved in sports;
- The multifaceted and complex demand arising from the regional production system and the regional community as a whole calls for a committed response by the appropriate organisms and institutions, through the development of an equally rich and highly structured project;
- The Regional institutions are called upon to engage in an increasingly broad spectrum of collaborative and exchange activities in the following areas:
 - search for innovative technical-technological solutions consistent with the specificity of the Tuscan production model;
 - training and continuous upgrading of professional backgrounds in the different fields of knowledge and of public and private activity;
 - organisation and management of control systems and self-control techniques in food production;
 - organisation and management of an adequate service network throughout the region;

- The 2002-2004 Regional Health Care Plan establishes the strategic goals for the three-year period as well as the tools and actions designed to pursue an improvement in the quality of life of the human and animal population additionally, Point 5.2.2.10 provides for interventions aiming to enhance the quality of the veterinary system:
- Top priority in the veterinary sector is given to safeguarding the quality of foodstuffs of animal origin, safeguarding the herds of livestock and the associated rearing activities, and improving animal wellbeing;
- An agreement protocol between the University of Pisa and the Experimental Zooprophyllactic Institute is already active, having been undersigned on 29th January 2002; the terms of the agreement concern cooperation in research, training, teaching and conducting experiments in the fields of shared interest.

WHEREAS, FURTHERMORE

- The Area denominated Regional System of Collective Prevention, within which the Regional Veterinary Service is organised, performs functions of orienting, planning and control; at the local level, within the Regional Prevention Department, there are veterinary functional and operative units whose work concerns the professional fields of Animal Health, Hygiene and Control of Foodstuffs of Animal Origin, Hygiene and Control of Animal Husbandry Productions;
- The Faculty of Veterinary Medicine of the University of Pisa fulfils the institutional duty of providing theoretical-practical education designed to train professionals capable of operating in the fields of veterinary health care, of control over the supply chain of foodstuffs of animal origin, and as self-employed professional vets;
- The Experimental Zooprophyllactic Institute is a scientific body in charge of delivering technologically advanced services that will act as operative tools: such tools are designed to play a key role in providing the State with the technical-scientific services necessary to guarantee a correct balance between, on the one hand, the development requirements of the foodstuff production system, and on the other, guarantees for consumer safety with regard to products of animal origin. These functions are performed in compliance with the tasks laid down in Leg. Decr. 270/93 and Reg. Law 44/99;

The parties, wishing to set up an agreement for cooperation in the framework of their specific competences and institutional aims:

- the delivery of some specific services connected to training and research activities.

Art.3 (TRAINING)

Collaboration in the field of training shall be developed by placing the user at the centre of the training programme, guaranteeing a multidisciplinary and multidimensional approach.

The collaborative project shall be further expanded by upgrading some of the study and specialisation courses to include the teaching of aspects that are consistent with Regional planning of public veterinary health care.

The training processes included within the Faculty Courses and the Specialisation Schools, and also in the lifelong education programme, shall involve the possibility of availing of facilities and personnel of the Regional Health Care Service and/or of the Experimental Zooprophyllactic Institute; the same holds for the practical internships of students, graduates and those enrolled in the Specialisation Schools.

Training activities shall allow the possibility of admitting external personnel who have not completed a university degree but who work in close cooperation with the Public Veterinary Health Care Service.

The possibility shall be considered that the parties involved in the present agreement protocol may participate in the “Regional Training Centre” that is currently being set up, as laid down in PSR 2002-2004.

The Museum of Veterinary Anatomy of the FVMP

La Storia

Il Museo Anatomico Veterinario nasce a Pisa nel 1818 tenuto in forma privata da Vincenzo Mazza, Veterinario della Grande Armata Napoleonica, che, diplomato in Veterinaria alla scuola di Milano, alla caduta dell'imperatore, apre una propria scuola a Pisa, nel quartiere di San Martino.

Nel 1839 Melchiorre Tonelli, veterinario comunale, addetto alla cavalleria ed alle razze equine reali è responsabile di una cattedra di Zootatria aggregata alla facoltà di Medicina e Chirurgia dell'Università di Pisa.

Il radicamento definitivo dello studio della Medicina Veterinaria si ha nel 1859 con Cosimo Ridolfi, Ministro della Pubblica Istruzione del Governo provvisorio della Toscana: da questo momento l'insegnamento veterinario si consolida e si espande rapidamente.

Nel 1874 il Museo trova ospitalità in un terreno attiguo agli Spedali Riuniti di Santa Chiara, nelle vicinanze dei Macelli Pubblici e del deposito Stalloni.

Nasce in questo modo la Regia Scuola Superiore di Medicina Veterinaria alle dipendenze dell'Università (1875).

La Storia

Nel Gabinetto di Anatomia, denominato poi Istituto di Anatomia Generale e Descrittiva dei Vertebrati Domestici, è riservato lo spazio per il Museo Anatomico. Qui sono accolti i preparati anatomici ereditati dai periodi precedenti e risalenti all'insegnamento del Mazza, cui si aggiungono quelli del professor Luigi Lombardini e dei suoi allievi, Chiappa, Antonini, Stampani e Bossi.

Virginio Bossi, preparatore anatomico esperto ed interessato in particolare ai vasi sanguigni, assume la direzione dell'Istituto di Anatomia l'anno dopo la morte del Lombardini, nel 1898, e la mantiene fino al 1903, anno in cui inizia a dedicarsi alla chirurgia. A lui subentra Ugo Barpi (1903-1925) proveniente dalla Scuola di Medicina Veterinaria di Napoli. L'allestimento di nuovi preparati museali si interrompe con la Prima Guerra Mondiale.

Luigi Lombardini

Virginio Bossi

Ugo Barpi

Durante la Seconda Guerra Mondiale gli eventi bellici hanno danneggiato molti preparati preziosi ed alcuni di questi sono andati perduti.

Nel 1965 il Museo si è trasferito nella sede attuale della Facoltà di Medicina Veterinaria e fa parte del Dipartimento di Patologia Animale, Proflassi e Igiene degli Alimenti.

Attualmente il Museo Anatomico è inserito nel S.I.M.A. (Sistema Museale di Ateneo), istituzione che ha il fine di sostenere e coordinare le strutture museali dell'Università di Pisa nello svolgimento dei propri compiti istituzionali di ricerca scientifica, di didattica e di promozione della cultura.

Le collezioni anatomiche

Il Museo accoglie le specie animali che l'uomo ha impiegato per suo interesse o per suo diletto: animali da produzione zootecnica ed animali d'affezione. Al suo interno è presente un cospicuo numero di preparati riguardanti i dromedari provenienti dalla tenuta di San Rossore dove erano ospitati fino al 1976. Il cavallo è la specie più rappresentata per la sua importanza nell'evoluzione storico-sociale dell'uomo.

LE DUE VETRINE CENTRALI

Una vetrina ospita organi cavi di grandi dimensioni, appartenenti all'apparato digerente di vari animali. Gli organi sono stati stesi mediante insufflazione delle loro cavità, montati su appositi sostegni per mantenere la forma ed i rapporti reciproci ed infine essiccati in tale posizione. Nell'altra vetrina sono raccolti arti interi, sia anteriori che posteriori, di tutta la gamma di animali ospitati nel museo. In questa classe di preparati sono stati messi in evidenza il sistema scheletrico, articolare e legamentoso disposti in modo fisiologico, il rivestimento muscolare, la vascolarizzazione e l'innervazione.

Le collezioni anatomiche

LA VETRINA DELL'APPARATO CARDIOCIRCOLATORIO

Si possono osservare sia cuori isolati che ancora provvisti dei grossi vasi arteriosi e venosi; alcuni preparati sono sezionati per visualizzarne le cavità.

In questa vetrina si trovano reperti anche di specie umana.

Sono ospitati preparati iniettati ed essiccati presentati sia nella loro forma naturale di sacco tridimensionale sia sotto forma di organi laminari aperti e stesi. Tutte rivelano la ricchezza della loro vascolarizzazione.

A lato sono collocati gli scheletri di animali caratterizzanti l'ambiente naturale della Macchia Mediterranea, in particolare della tenuta di San Rossore: tre cervi, un daino ed un airone.

All'interno del Museo, oltre ad alcuni esemplari di animali esotici estinti, sono presenti scheletri completi dei principali animali da produzione zootecnica e d'affezione.
